slightly less exalted in his essay, "Is Nothing Sacred". Although at its end he rejects the claims of the novel to be able to replace religion, he makes some strong claims for it: Between religion and literature, as between politics and literature, there is a linguistically based dispute. But it is not a dispute of simple opposites.

of long-term and unrelieved institutionalization upon abandoned children. The paragraph opens with a clear cause and effect relationship: Orphaned children who enter foster care benefit from leaving the institution, and children who do not enter foster care do not fare as well. Note, however, that the
